FROM THE WRITER

Just over two years ago I was standing on the steps of South Australian Parliament House surrounded by a group of 3000 inspiring young people, there was hundreds of thousands of their peers protesting globally demanding action on climate change - I was blown away at how they were using their voice to demand change. A light blub lit up in my mind. I reacted out to our great friends at South Australian Youth Arts and pitched them an idea and we got to work on a peice of theatre about the schools strike movement.

However, it wasn't until the devestating Black Summer fires and the incredible courage of so many young people during that time did this show truly find it's voice and evolve into what you see today.

It hasn't been easy, creating a collabraitive theatre work across two states during a pandemic has been chaotic at times, yet very rewarding. It's been such a learning. It proves art rises above all. We must thank the South Australian creative team, Tamara, Alan, and Rebecca for their ongoing support.

It's taken a small army of creatives to bring this work to the stage here on the Coast. Lead by the creative genius that is Callan Purcell. The young people have relished working with him. He along with associate director Ethan Dale, Composer Amy Flannery, Lighting Designer Nik Lyons, and stage manager Evelyn, have created something incredibly special.

I also want to thank the young people who inspired this show, and contributed to it's creation. Namely, Izzy Raj-Sepping and Leila Mangos, while we don't tell their exact stories in this work we've be able borrow enough inspiration to give these characters life.

We've had a brilliant cast who've worked through an insane set of circumstances, they've truly embraced the creative process of creating a new theatre work almost from sratch. I'm super proud of them all.

Personally, I want to thank my dramaturg and "here-is-a-scene-better-than-your-entire-show" assitant writer, Jamie Hornsby, for being with my on this journey and letting me bounce my crazy ideas off you at ungodly ideas.

This isn't just piece of theatre, or a political statement, this is a battle cry, please take the message of this show, and if you haven't already join the fight for our future.

The future generations depend on us.

ABOUT JOPUKA

Jopuka Productions is the Central Coast's leading youth-arts body. It was established specifically to provide performing arts training and development to a wide array of emerging artists, aged 12-26, from all across Darkinjung Country, on the Central Coast of New South Wales. Jopuka provides a safe and peer-driven space for emerging artists to hone their craft and forge their own pathways into the arts industry. We present unique and innovative seasons, filled to the brim with new works, Australian classics, cutting-edge musicals and Fringe favourites.

Jopuka has staged over 30 acclaimed productions, including a range of new and established works. We've commissioned seven new Australian works from emerging writers and theatre-makers across Australia, and even won a couple of awards in process. Since launching we've provided arts opportunities for over 900 young people across many areas of production.

Now neatly tucked away in our own venue, The Launch Pad, Jopuka is committed to creating innovative, inclusive and exceptional work with our community of emerging artists. Despite the challenges that 2020 has brought, Jopuka is still keeping the fire burning, and we look forward to sharing new work with our community soon.

JOPUKA GOES GREEN

This year we're ramping up our efforts to become more sustainable. One of the newest ways we are changing how we operate is scaling back our programmes, flyers, and posters. We'll now only be providing digital for our production and only be printing limited stocks of posters and flyers and were possible on 100% recycled paper.

As COVID-19 begins to slow we we'll be announcing a range of new initiatives to get the company more green.
